ETHICS IN PUBLIC CONTRACTING, ANTI-KICKBACK AND PROCUREMENT
Contractors assist researchers in carrying out their various programs and activities. Contracting is used for a range of purposes from professional services and logistical support to construction activities and property management. When a researcher is involved with procuring property or services under a Federal grant, the PI must make sure it is compliant with standards involving procurement practices, contracting services, conflict of interest provisions, and other related issues. This seminar will address topics associated with responsibilities for PIs and staff involved with public contracting.
