

2013-2014 Hugh Critz Faculty Leadership Program

Sponsored by the university's Office of Research and Economic Development and Office of the Provost and Executive Vice President, the Faculty Leadership Program works to develop the next generation of campus academic leaders, among other goals. This year, it honors the memory of the land-grant institution's eighth president (1930-34), a Starkville native and a Mississippi State alumnus. Participants are:

Tom Allen, Extension/research professor, Delta Research and Extension Center

Kari Babski-Reeves, associate professor of industrial and systems engineering

Ron Cossman, research professor, Social Science Research Center

Michael Cox, professor of plant and soil sciences

Jeremiah Davis, associate professor of agricultural and biological engineering

Dipangkar Dutta, associate professor of physics and astronomy

Hans Herrmann, assistant professor of architecture

Mark Hersey, associate professor of history

Brenda Kirkland, associate professor of geosciences

Yaroslav Koshka, professor of electrical and computer engineering

Rebecca Long, associate professor of management

Michele McDonnall, research professor, National Research and Training Center on Blindness and Low Vision

Tommy Morris, assistant professor of electrical and computer engineering

Zhaohua Peng; professor of biochemistry, molecular biology, entomology and plant pathology

Rani Sullivan, associate professor of aerospace engineering

Kenneth Willeford, professor of biochemistry, molecular biology, entomology and plant pathology

Kevin Williams, associate professor of communication